MACARTHUR area carers and their Wingecarribee neighbours kicked up their heels at Kirribilli House recently.

The dedicated minders were treated to a day of fine food and champagne on the lawns of the Prime Minister's Sydney residence - and were able to forget their responsibilities for just a few hours.

The outing coincided with Carers Week and Mental Health Month and was organised by the Haven Project and Macarthur Disability Services to celebrate the contribution that carers make to the community.

Almost 100 carers mingled and marvelled at the amazing harbour views.

MDS chief executive officer Anne Thorn was delighted to be part of the day.

"This was our way of thanking carers who may not otherwise realise how important their role is and how much their work is appreciated," she said.
